Ann Preston, Division of Waste Management, Hazardous Waste Section, received a phone call alleging that an official at the CSX railroad at 105 Sutton Rd. in Rocky Mount, North Carolina, was directing employees to throw used rags dripping with diesel fuel into the dumpster. The site visit performed 19 June 2009 with the facility's train station master did not reveal what shop would be engaged with the process as described above. The station master stated he would follow up on the complaint and try to identify what parties could be using diesel to perform clean up duties.
